

Strategy Description

Key Trends is a medium-to-long-term systematic trading system, investing in the most liquid futures markets. Based on its innovative probabilistic model, Key Trends is able to detect establishing trends quickly, to characterize high potential established trends, as well as detecting trend reversals sooner, thus elevating Key Trends' profit potential versus its peers. Moreover, thanks to a unique "Global Economic Factor" (GEF)®, Key Trends is able to assess the strength of global economic trends in order to optimize its portfolio exposure.

Monthly Commentary

For the month ending August 31, 2018, the Key Trends UCITS (A-EUR shares) posted a net return of -0.45%, bringing the net YTD return to +2.60%.

US equities were up in August, driven by strong earnings reports, with the S&P 500 gaining 3.03%. This was in sharp contrast to equity markets in Europe and Asia, where the EuroStoxx 50 was down -3.76% and the Hang Sang Index was -2.43%. The US Dollar Index was up 0.66% on renewed trade tensions and turmoil in emerging markets currencies. The United States and Mexico found a trade deal to replace NAFTA and optimism about the strength in the U.S. economy fueled the Fed's decision to continue to raise interest rates. President Trump threatened to pull the U.S. out of the WTO and said that the EU's proposal to eliminate auto tariffs was "not good enough." Yields on German and US government debt decreased as investors looked for safe-haven assets. Oil prices rose 1.51%, supported by news of falling Iranian crude shipments. Metals decreased, with silver dropping nearly 7% and gold falling almost 2%.

Long bonds and long US equities were positive contributors for the month. On the losing side was long European equities and short US Treasuries. Currencies were flat. The model decreased overall exposure as the Global Economic Factor ("GEF") drove the ex-ante volatility of the portfolio from 14.9% to 14.0%. Exposure was added on US equities and decreased on European equities and US Treasuries.

We are pleased to announce that assets under management for KeyQuant have reached $570 million at September 1.
